

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE FOR MBA.

Diversity is the key to an impactful and far reaching career. I have learned the core attributes of perseverance, focus and patience right from a very young age. MY own father being an Army Personnel is a very disciplined, patient and determined individual. He has always been the one I looked forward to as he used to keep in records of all the financial activities thus making me keenly interested in it.

My schooling as well as college days were normal, amazing yet exciting. My brothers and me were enrolled into Don Bosco convent School, an Indian Certificate of Secondary Education(ICSE) which later changed to Central Board of Secondary Education(CBSE) school, hence it was amazing completing my education upto 10th in both the boards(i.e. ICSE and CBSE). After completing my 10th i was bent on not following my elder brother's footsteps of opting Science for senior school instead i went on opting Commerce which decision was highly supported by my family. Since my previous school didn't had commerce available i was enrolled in to New Beersheba Public School, completing my senior school (10+2) from there.

I wanted to go for Chartered Accountancy but my dad wasn't in favour of that instead he asked me to go for my undergraduate degree. For my undergraduate degree I underwent Bachelor of Commerce (B.Com.). After graduating I started preparing for banking as well as Union Public Service Commission (UPSC) exams. I did entered the interview round of banking several times, but I soon realized that it wasn't what i wanted to do or where I saw myself in near future. After realizing this I started to sharpen my computer skills as well as ERP, I even started to work for an accountant in order to keep myself up n focused.

I was an extremely active student in terms of co-curricular activities, since the days of my early schooling i was very much interested in participating in various competitions such as debate and speech, plays as well as many sports events. My interest in all these made me more confident and inculcated the habit of working in groups as well as built in some leadership qualities. In my senior schooling years I started hosting programs giving my confidence of public speaking a boost. My keen interest in sports made me more active and increased my level of confidence along with making me the sports champion of the year. Even in my undergraduate years I participated in debate, speech and extempore competitions as well as other events, also representing my college in inter-college competitions.

I always wanted to do my further studies i.e. my Masters from abroad, as one's dreams and goals are brought into existence when the mind and heart are set on it to achieve.

We live in a business-oriented world and to fit into its fast pace I believe one needs to acquire a thorough understanding of how it works. But I soon realized that in order to quench my curiosity I have to go for a Master's degree in Business Administration, allowing me to further enhance my marketability for job offers, as well as network for potential employment and aid my goal of establishing a business enterprise someday in future.

Now, this is how my thought process worked but I still had to form a concrete plan and it while working on this front I came across the MBA program offered by your esteemed university. I felt that the international perspective and practical skills which are imparted through your MBA program would help me towards attaining my goal of establishing a business enterprise someday in near future. Also, the global experience that your institution extends would help me gain knowledge regarding business economy and excel in the global market. This program will give me the ability to learn from the faculty members with a track record of success in the industry, allowing me to understand the caveats of business world better.

I strongly believe that I'll be a positive addition to your University, pursuing thus renowned degree where my passion lies and therefore giving my best to excel in it and further utilize the knowledge and exposure to enhance my career in Business and Management.
