

Denmark has some of the most affordable and student-friendly cities in the world, like Copenhagen and Aalborg. It is not only the positive atmosphere of campuses, communities and cities in Denmark that are beneficial to students' experience, but also the results of the social security system, the additional financial facilities and even the accessibility for international students. Universities in Denmark are known for their thriving learning environment and high standard education. The strengths of the teaching and learning style of Danish universities lie in the problem-based learning methods that encourage students to find their own solutions and become innovative thinkers.

STUDENT LIFE

When you arrive in Denmark you will probably notice the relaxed atmosphere, a lot of people on bikes, and that things generally run smoothly. If you are sensible and follow local habits and are a little economical – such as cycling to university and eating at home – then living costs in Denmark should not blow your budget.
